February 2006
The Alcohol and Drug Abuse Institute is a multidisciplinary research center at the University of Washington. Its mission is to support and facilitate research and research dissemination in the field of alcohol and drug abuse.

The ADAI Library is a resource for UW students, faculty and staff, as well as for substance abuse professionals and university students in Washington. The library collection covers the spectrum of research and scientific literature on alcohol and other drug use from all relevant disciplines, including medicine, nursing, social work, criminal justice, sociology and psychology.

Library Collection
- 3,600 books and monographs
- 100 core journals and newsletters
- 200 videos
- 275+ clinical and research questionnaires
- Statistical and other reference sources
- 10,000 reprints, pamphlets, and unpublished documents

On-line Resources

Library Catalogs: The Library produces an online catalog with over 75,000 references to articles, books and reprints which can be search by author, keywords in title, source, date and other criteria.

Video Catalog: Web-searchable catalog contains our collection of about 200 videos.

Other Databases: Library staff can search dozens of bibliographic databases covering substance abuse and related disciplines. Bibliographies and some journals are available on-line.

The ADAI Web Site: The Institute’s web site has an extensive directory of substance abuse-related web links, as well as links to a multitude of on-line publications and other resources.

Two workstations in the Library provide Internet access to the UW Library catalog and other on-line resources.
